If everybody was always sick, they would never appreciate the value of good health. For this reason it is better to just be sick once in a while for a change. If your health has been perfect for a long while you just feel natural, but if it suddenly gets perfect after a case of pneumonia or a broken leg, you feel greatly relieved.
When 2 people pass each other on the street the first one says, How are you? and the 2nd one says, How are you? without saying how he is himself, and the first one don't say anything more. Proving they are both all right.
When you feel pretty sick you start to think about seeing a doctor, and when you feel very sick you actually go to see one, and when you feel awful sick one comes to see you, and if you get even worse than that he brings another one with him.
A doctor can tell how you're feeling inside by how you're looking outside. No matter what he tells you is the matter with you, you believe it. Doctors with wiskers look as if they knew more than doctors with naked faces, properly being the reason why so many have wiskers. Just by taking the number of your pulse, a doctor can tell how you feel to yourself by how you feel to him.
The most popular way to get sick is thru your stomach, the reason being that your stomach can stand serious things such as cucumbers and milk mixed and all kinds of poisons. The sickest you can get is when your heart stops beating.
When you are sick your family sends you flowers and when you are dead everybody sends them. This proves that when you are able to enjoy things the most you awffin don't get the chance.

IN THE WOODS.
I wandered today in the wonderland woods, a forest majestic and grand, where solitude, silence, and similar goods are spread with a liberal hand. Afar from the hurry and noise of the town I journeyed through alleys of pines; I thought 'twould inspire me to sit myself down and write you some soul-searching lines. The forest is noble, impressive and sad, as poets have wotted and weened, but I was rejoiced to get back to the grad, and sit in unusual ways, and I am anointing est is full of unusual bugs, which bit in unusual ways, and I am anointing my system with drugs, to soften the swellings they raise. The forest's mosquitoes are larger than hens; they're hungry and active and mean; the spots where they bit me are looking like wens, and I am a sight to be seen. The woods are the homes of malevolent ants, which thrive in the shade of the trees; they crawl up inside of the wanderer's pants, and eat all the flesh from his knees. The town has its faults; it is wild for the cash, it's swarming with callous-souled men; but if you would urge me to chase to the brush, I say to you, "Never again."
